He next stated that, more certainly than any third world war is the coming destruction at the hand of God in the Battle of Armageddon. "The reason for Armageddon is again the issue of world domination," he went on, "for universal peace can exist only when God rules over all the earth." This convention of Jehovah's Witnesses was billed as "the largest convention ever held in Red Deer". Sleeping quarters were provided for about 1500 delegates. All hotels and commercial accommodations were used at this assembly and were obtained through door-to-door visitations by trained authorized personnel, on the people of Red Deer district. LOOK OUT ... LABOUR DAY WEEK-END FAST APPROACHING

Let's make this Labor Day week-end the safest ever. It marks an end to the good old summer time and many summer-time sports.

The Alberta Safety Council suggests we look back at the accident casualties over the Dominion Day Holiday to give us some indi-cation at the seriousness of the problem we face. During the July 1st merry making, 8 Albertans were killed.

Since the Labor Day weekend is traditionally the last opportunity each year for most families to get away for a fun spree before settling down to the fall and winter season, the temptation is probably much greater to over-exert themselves.

The unfortunate result is that we attempt to crowd too much into this holiday opportunity. Many will press too hard, hurry too much and take too many unnecessary chances

This will make Labor Day a special problem, and a very tough problem from an accident prevention point of view, according to the Provincial Safety Council.

Of course safe driving to and from recreation areas can't be over-stressed. Be sure that all the passengers in your car use seat belts. Allow plenty of time for your trip and adjust your speed to traffic, road and weather Obey traffic laws and signs and conditions. don't drink before driving. Be alert for mistakes of other drivers which could result in a collision. If you obey these rules, your trip should be less tense and more enjoyable.

OF MANY THINGS (By Ambrose Hills)

Young Man's Predicament

I know a young man who entered the working force the other day. I don't envy him the decision he feels he must make.

In his opinion, he is joining a society in which he must strive to be very rich, or settle for heing guite poor.

which he must strive to be very rich, or settle for being quite poor . . a freeloader in a coun-try determined to live high off the hog. He feels we older folks are loading society with services and costs. We will enjoy some of the services for a few years, quite cheaply. He will have to pay for them, quite dearly.

He is a talented young man, with two bents: either school teaching or writing poet-ry. As a teacher, he would be in the middlery. As a reacher, he would be in the middle-income group, and every service would be a charge against his pay cheque. It is his conviction that the way things are going, the taxes and other charges he would have to pay from his teaching salary would allow him to live in gentile poverty. He has little taste for that

On the other hand, he reasons that times will be excellent for the poet – because poets have little income against which government can levy taxes. He feels that innumerable can levy taxes. He teels that innumerable services would be his for free – paid for by the teachers, farmers, professional people, the great body of the middle class. He would live in poverty, perhaps, but with services fit for a king pressed upon him, plus a Canada Council grant now and then so he could live it up a little.

I pointed out to the young man that he had not discussed his other option: becoming quite rich. He said that he had abandoned that one, because he had no talent for finance and his rich uncle was looking quite sturdy these days. If wealth is thrust upon him, he teels he can survive it, but doubts his ability to go out and get it for himself. At the moment, he is rather set on becoming a poet, and living in Bohemian poverty, cared for by a society more concerned about his welfare than it would be if he were teaching the children of the next generation.

Perhaps he is right. Looks like a good

OF MANY THINGS

(By Ambrose Hills) Medical Care

Even doctors, who have grave doubts about a national, compulsory medical care plan, are not willing to engage in an all-out fight against it. Doctors, in the main, are convinced that in the long run it will do damage to the quality of service they are able to give.

Doctors fear many persons will abuse such a service, and make it very difficult for the patient in serious need of treatment to get it promptly. They would have preferred that governments, instead of taking over the entire field of medical care would provide finance.

governments, instead of taking over the entire field of medical care would provide financial help to give care to those unable to provide it for themselves. Or provide a form of disaster insurance against huge bills.

Modern thinking, however, seems to be that you can't help the needy without helping everybody. If the poor man is offered assistance, it must also be given to the rich manforced upon him, if need be forced upon him, if need be. Charity is thought to degrade the re-cipient. The Good Samaritan would be puzzled about how to behave in our modern society!

My bet is that we will have a full-scale Medicare Plan in Canada within 10 years. It sounds so attractive to voters. Those who oppose it appear to be meanies, enemies of the sick and maimed. Those who, having paid Hospital Insurance for years only to find no hospital bed available when they took sick, will listen closely to the critics. They will recall the fruit stand owner who priced his bangans away below his competitor – but had no nanas away below his competitor - but had no bananas to sell.

One thing is certain. If we get a national Pension Plan plus a national Medicare Plan, the total cost is going to give the family man in the middle-income level so many head-aches he will need his doctor more than ever before. Canada is becoming a country in which it is best to be either very poor or extremely rich. The middle class takes the onerous load.

An ideal way to satisfy the individual preferences of all the family in respect to tubs and showers, is to have both a bathtub and a shower installed.

Many older folks prefer a tub bath, others appreciate the availability of a tub for bathing small children.

My own view is that the public is not entirely right or wrong and where it has cause to complain it is because of an unintentional bias by the writer. Those who read the Vancouver Province must have noted that at intervals there are editorials deploring the number of highway accidents and declaring that provincial speed limits are too high.

freedom of the press. It was clear, logical and impressive but I doubt if many people read it. For while the press may prate loudly of its freedom the ordinary people are inclined to believe the freedom is one sided that in the sacred name of freedom of the press everything goes from the invasion of the individual's privacy to a suble distortion of the truth. The public is probably wrong in believing this but the fact remains that it views freedom of the press with scepticism.

Knowing how to shut off the water for the entire house or for any part of it can be extremely important in an emergency.

any part of it can be extremely important in an emergency. That's why it is well for all members of the family to know where the valves are and in which direction they should be turned to shut off the water. One way of identifying valves is to have a tag on each one indicating its function, that is, which fixture each controls. Valve identifying tags can be obtained from most plumbing contractors.

The most important valve in a house is the main shut-off valve for the plumbing system. It is generally located in the basement near new ater meter and has a handle shaped like a wheel.

If this valve has not been turned for several years, it might require a wrench to operate it.

Because operation of this valve in emergencies is important, it is advisable to place a few drops of thin oil around the valve handle once or twice a year.

Another idea which can aid in identifying parts of a plumbing system is to paint pipes a distinctive color. Suggested colors are-red for hot water supply lines, blue for cold water lines, yellow for waste and black for vent pipes.

Bathroom fix-up rates priority

If a homeowner must decide between a new patio or a new powder room, you can be sure he'll choose the plumbing; if he choice is between installing bullt-ins or modernizing his bathroom—again plumbing will win, says Norman R. Held, president of one of the mation's leading manufacturers of plumbing fixtures. Modern-styled bathroom fixtures that combline beauty and convenience are tops in home morernization plans. It is recognized today that the bathroom and the powder room are what might be called 'hard wear' areas.

For this reason, careful selec-

The tailored kitchen can be a real wife-saver. Installing the sink with the rim 38 inches from the floor and raising other work surfaces as well, can take most of the drudgery out of doing the dishes and preparing meals.

In new construction or in remodelling, the home-owner can have the kitchen sink, cabinets, lunch bar, built-in dinetter, range and refrigerator built at heights and widths which are most convenient for the person who uses the equipment.

An experienced plumbing contractor will be able to install a sink at exactly the right height for any home maker. He can then make all of the arrangements with other tradesment to provide cabinets and counter space at the same height. Collective

CHIEF CROWFOOT - STATESMAN OF THE PLAINS

Long before white settlers came, there were great and proud men in Alberta. Such was Chief Crowfoot, born in a Blackfoot teepee near Gleichen in 1826, Chief Crowfoot was great on two counts - as a warrior and as a peacemaker. He could say, "Though our enemies be as strong as the sun, as numerous as the stars, we will defend our lodges." But Crowfoot was never the aggressor. Three Year Big Game Bag Limit

Bog Limit

To accommodate the rapidly increasing population of hunters in Alberta, the Fish and Wildlife branch of the Department of Lands and Forests has replaced the province's 22 Hunting Zones with 134 Wildlife Management Units and instituted a three-year big game bag limit and season forecast, according to Hon. N. A. Willmore, Minister of Lands and Forests.

The Wildlife Management units (W.M.U.) have been set up to allow more intense management of the entire wildlife resources, thus providing the opportunity for more hunters to harvest more of the game crop without destroying the brood stock. The long range foresat will allow persons basing holidays on hunting seasons the opportunity of making plans well in advance.

In establishing the W.M.U.'s, the

In establishing the W.M.U.'s, the other in climate, soil, vegetation and type of game. Each region was further divided into Management, this, numbered in series according to the region. Thirty units in the P-100 series are located in the dry grassland area of southeast-ern Alberta. Another 31 units — P-200 series — are located in the east central parkland region, 30 (F-300) in the Western foothills, 23 (5-400) in the mountains and 20 (M-500) are located in the mixed orest area of the northern part of the province.

This arrangement provides more flexibility in management, enabling officials to treat game on a local population basis. Hunting areas for all three groups of game (big game) upland birds and waterfowl) may now be established by designating specific groups of management units to be hunted in in. When a specific area is found unsuitable for hunting, due to a depletion of the game population, it may be closed, while surrounding units with good population or game are left open to hunters. In many cases the group of WMU's open on a specific animal or bird will correspond to the areas previously designated by zones. It is pointed out that each region must be treated differently because of different species involved. For instance, antelope and sage grouse are found primarily in the grassland region, while the largest populations of white tailed deer and ruffed grouse are found in the parkland region. By the same token, management units may be treated individually because of differences in densities of game and human populations and access to hunting areas. The new arrangement does not mean there will be 134 seasons on mean there will be 134 seasons on mean there will be received in the control of the mum season and minimum bag limit on males only. Forecasts will be reviewed prior to each season, bag limits extended to include fe-males, where applicable, and the seasons extended where condi-tions permit. In some extreme cas-es, such as an epidemic among a species, it may be necessary to reduce limits and seasons in cer-tain areas.

Schedule pamphlets (including maps) on big game and game birds along with the big game foreast, will be available prior to the hunting season. Information in excess of what is contained in the pamphlets may be obtained from the nearest. Fish and Wildlife office.
